BEING on Pancake Court is as much fun for kids as the adults accompanying them to this entertaining one-hour performance at the Bakehouse Theatre.

The musical ticks all the boxes on expectations, songs, performances and some fantastic dancing in an easy friendly manner, making it easy for young audiences to relate to the situations and characters.

It is a perfectly-sized instalment in a nice intimate space to get young audiences drawn to the Fringe and more broadly to the magic of performance and theatre.

The central characters of Ivy and Bean, played by Millicent and Briony, deliver marvellously but the other four performers are outstanding as well, managing to individually impress as they build on their support act.
