

Adelaide Fringe Festival Review 2016: The Road That Wasn't There

February 15, 2016 10:07am

The Advertiser

The Road That Wasn't There

Children's Event, *****

The Bakehouse Theatre, until February 20

IF there is only one show that you can watch this Fringe, this one is the pick of the crop.

Fantastic role play by the three NZ stars of the show intersperse with puppetry, clever light play, sound and other props to weave this imaginary tale full of wit and wonder.

It's a brilliant rollercoaster of emotions — ranging from loud laughs to pin-drop silences from young and old audiences alike.

Probably one to keep the littlies and toddlers away from though as the story veers into the dark side, especially depicted by scary puppets a little bit into the proceedings.

It's a simple, predictable story but gripping and engrossing all the same.

-Valerina Changarathil